Bombay Islam: The Religious Economy of the West Indian Ocean 1840-1915

Nile Green

As a thriving port city, nineteenth-century Bombay attracted migrants from across India and beyond. Nile Green’s Bombay Islam traces the ties between industrialization, imperialism, and the production of religion to show how Muslim migration from the oceanic and continental hinterlands of Bombay in this period fueled demand for a wide range of religious suppliers, as they competed for a stake in the new market.

Bombay Islam: The Religious Economy of the West Indian Ocean, 1840-1915

As a thriving port city, nineteenth-century Bombay attracted migrants from across India and beyond. Nile Green’s Bombay Islam traces the ties between industrialization, imperialism, and the production of religion to show how Muslim migration from the oceanic and continental hinterlands of Bombay in this period fueled demand for a wide range of religious suppliers, as they competed for a stake in the new market.

Bombay Islam - Assets

It is the nature and significance of this religious economy that Bombay Islam explores as a parallel to the predominantly Christian but no less internally pluralistic and productive religious economy of the industrializing Atlantic in the same period.

Bombay Islam | Nile Green

It is the nature and significance of this religious economy that Bombay Islam explores as a parallel to the predominantly Christian but no less internally pluralistic and productive religious economy of the industrializing Atlantic in the same period.

Bombay Islam: The Religious Economy of the West Indian Ocean, 1840-1915

As a thriving port city, nineteenth-century Bombay attracted migrants from across India and beyond. Nile Green’s Bombay Islam traces the ties between industrialization, imperialism, and the production of religion to show how Muslim migration from the oceanic and continental hinterlands of Bombay in this period fueled demand for a wide range of religious suppliers, as they competed for a stake in the new market.

Bombay Islam: The Religious Economy of the West Indian Ocean, 1840-1915

As a thriving port city, nineteenth-century Bombay attracted migrants from across India and beyond. Nile Green’s Bombay Islam traces the ties between industrialization, imperialism, and the production of religion to show how Muslim migration from the oceanic and continental hinterlands of Bombay in this period fueled demand for a wide range of religious suppliers, as they competed for a stake in the new market.

Bombay Islam: The Religious Economy of the West Indian Ocean, 1840-1915

As a thriving port city, nineteenth-century Bombay attracted migrants from across India and beyond. Nile Green’s Bombay Islam traces the ties between industrialization, imperialism, and the production of religion to show how Muslim migration from the oceanic and continental hinterlands of Bombay in this period fueled demand for a wide range of religious suppliers, as they competed for a stake in the new market.

Bombay Islam: The Religious Economy of the West Indian Ocean, 1840-1915

As a thriving port city, nineteenth-century Bombay attracted migrants from across India and beyond. Nile Green’s Bombay Islam traces the ties between industrialization, imperialism, and the production of religion to show how Muslim migration from the oceanic and continental hinterlands of Bombay in this period fueled demand for a wide range of religious suppliers, as they competed for a stake in the new market.

Bombay Islam: The Religious Economy of the West Indian Ocean, 1840-1915

As a thriving port city, nineteenth-century Bombay attracted migrants from across India and beyond. Nile Green’s Bombay Islam traces the ties between industrialization, imperialism, and the production of religion to show how Muslim migration from the oceanic and continental hinterlands of Bombay in this period fueled demand for a wide range of religious suppliers, as they competed for a stake in the new market.

Bombay Islam: The Religious Economy of the West Indian Ocean, 1840-1915

As a thriving port city, nineteenth-century Bombay attracted migrants from across India and beyond. Nile Green’s Bombay Islam traces the ties between industrialization, imperialism, and the production of religion to show how Muslim migration from the oceanic and continental hinterlands of Bombay in this period fueled demand for a wide range of religious suppliers, as they competed for a stake in the new market.

Bombay Islam: The Religious Economy of the West Indian Ocean, 1840-1915

As a thriving port city, nineteenth-century Bombay attracted migrants from across India and beyond. Nile Green’s Bombay Islam traces the ties between industrialization, imperialism, and the production of religion to show how Muslim migration from the oceanic and continental hinterlands of Bombay in this period fueled demand for a wide range of religious suppliers, as they competed for a stake in the new market.

Bombay Islam: The Religious Economy of the West Indian Ocean, 1840-1915

As a thriving port city, nineteenth-century Bombay attracted migrants from across India and beyond. Nile Green’s Bombay Islam traces the ties between industrialization, imperialism, and the production of religion to show how Muslim migration from the oceanic and continental hinterlands of Bombay in this period fueled demand for a wide range of religious suppliers, as they competed for a stake in the new market.

Bombay Islam: The Religious Economy of the West Indian Ocean, 1840-1915

As a thriving port city, nineteenth-century Bombay attracted migrants from across India and beyond. Nile Green’s Bombay Islam traces the ties between industrialization, imperialism, and the production of religion to show how Muslim migration from the oceanic and continental hinterlands of Bombay in this period fueled demand for a wide range of religious suppliers, as they competed for a stake in the new market.

Bombay Islam: The Religious Economy of the West Indian Ocean, 1840-1915

As a thriving port city, nineteenth-century Bombay attracted migrants from across India and beyond. Nile Green’s Bombay Islam traces the ties between industrialization, imperialism, and the production of religion to show how Muslim migration from the oceanic and continental hinterlands of Bombay in this period fueled demand for a wide range of religious suppliers, as they competed for a stake in the new market.

Bombay Islam: The Religious Economy of the West Indian Ocean, 1840-1915

As a thriving port city, nineteenth-century Bombay attracted migrants from across India and beyond. Nile Green’s Bombay Islam traces the ties between industrialization, imperialism, and the production of religion to show how Muslim migration from the oceanic and continental hinterlands of Bombay in this period fueled demand for a wide range of religious suppliers, as they competed for a stake in the new market.